

Questionmark SWAP: Sharing With Assessment Professionals

Overview

As the community of Questionmark Perception users continues to grow, so does the volume of Perception-deliverable assessment content. Questionmark has always aimed to make it easy for learning professionals to write, schedule, deliver and report on assessments. Now Questionmark is making it easier to share Perception-deliverable content with other Perception users.

Perception users come from organizations of all types and sizes, representing the academic, business, non-profit and government sectors. Membership in the Questionmark Community has always included opportunities to share best practices and lessons learned. Now it also includes the opportunity to share content.

How SWAP Works

SWAP members may register as SWAP users, publishers, or both. Questionmark provides animated tutorials giving an overview the SWAP user registration, the content search and request process, the SWAP publisher registration publishing process, and content management.

- Users: Register as a user to search available questions and item banks. The SWAP system enables you to easily submit a request to a publisher, who can enable your account access and download the assessment content.
- Publishers: Register as a publisher to share your assessment content. The topic and description of your content will be searchable in the My Content search engine. Publishers may maintain full control over who gains access to their content.

Search for Content

One registered as a user, you can search the database according to the type of content you require. If you don't find what you are looking for, you can use the SWAP online forum to let other members know what you need.

Leveraging New Capabilities

The latest version of Questionmark Perception makes it easier than ever to publish, share and import items. SWAP leverages these new capabilities and combines them with a content sharing service available exclusively to Questionmark Software Support Plan subscribers. These customers can access this content sharing system using the "My Content" option in Questionmark Communities.
